

2021 MID-YEAR REFLECTIONS

This worksheet is for taking note of what you've accomplished so far (no matter how seemingly menial) and for reevaluating the goals and projects you planned at the beginning of this year. Ask yourself these questions without judgment and remember to be kind to yourself. Don't beat yourself up for not reaching your goals, and don't talk yourself out of projects that seem too big if you know they will bring you joy.

What did I accomplished so far and did I enjoy those projects?

What did I not accomplish?

Are the incomplete projects still important to me?

Can I let go of the incomplete projects?

Are there any new projects I want to add to the list?

2021 PROJECT LIST

Once you've got an idea of what projects and goals you'd like to keep working on or start for this latter half of the year, use this worksheet to help you keep track of them all. I like to assign points to each project in a few categories so that I can get a better idea of what are the "best" or "most successful" projects. It's a bit silly but it's also a bit fun. I give a rating between one and ten for the following categories: How fun was the project? How much did I learn? How much skill did I build? The projects with the most points are the types of projects I'd want to do again.

PROJECT	START DATE	END DATE	FUN	LEARN	SKILL	TOTAL POINTS